

---

Contents

1	Why Racial Change in the Suburbs Matters Erica Frankenberg and Gary Orfield	1
2	Understanding Suburban School District Transformation A Typology of Suburban Districts Erica Frankenberg	27
3	Pursuing “Separate but Equal” in Suburban San Antonio A Case Study of Southern Independent School District Jennifer Jellison Holme, Anjalé Welton, and Sarah Diem	45
4	Holding the Borderline School District Responsiveness to Demographic Change in Orange County, California Lorrie Frasure-Yokley	69
5	Help Wanted The Challenges and Opportunities of Immigration and Cultural Change in a Working-Class Boston Suburb Susan Eaton	91
6	Dividing Lines East Versus West in Minneapolis Suburbs Baris Gumus-Dawes, Myron Orfield, and Thomas Luce	113
7	Conflicting Mandates Amid Suburban Change Educational Opportunity in a Post-Desegregation Florida Countywide District Kathryn Wiley, Barbara Shircliffe, and Jennifer Morley	139

8	High Civic Capacity, Low Demand for Integration Rapid Demographic Transition in Suburban Atlanta Elizabeth DeBray and Ain Grooms	163
9	“The Oak Park Way” Isn’t Enough Lasting Diversity Achieved, School Challenges Remaining in Suburban Chicago Gary Orfield	185
10	Conclusion Going Forward Gary Orfield	215
	Notes	239
	Acknowledgments	263
	About the Editors	265
	About the Contributors	267
	Index	271